Fits Cured

From U.S. Journal of Medicine
Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferers who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York

CANCER CURED
—AND A—
LIFE SAVED
By the Persistent Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia.

A FIELD OF DAISIES.

Away and away on every side
The wide fields billowed in gold and white—
Tens of thousands of daisies fair
Looked up and welcomed the sunshine bright.
But the farmer leaned on his hoe to rest
And muttered frowningly, "I'll be blest
If ever I see such a spreadin pest!"

His wife was bustling to and fro,
Making the guestrooms "spick and span,"
Decorating with muslin and scrim,
And the ever present Japanese fan.
Then she threw her apron over her head
And out for a "posy" of daisies sped.
"The boarders 'll like 'em!" she breathless said.

The "boarders" came, and with "Ohs!" and "Ahs!"
Greeted the fields where the daisies trooped.
And they plucked them for belt and breast and hair,
Then threw them down where they faded and drooped.
And they fell in the dusty wagon track,
Where the clumsy oxen drew cart and rack,
And their trampled beauty came not back.

But the little daughter wandered forth
Under the branching apple trees
That bordered the field, and lived all day
With birds and flowers and whispering breeze.
And the daisies listed her prattle sweet,
And told her stories for fairies meet,
Such as only the daisies can repeat.

And the poet, dreaming beneath the trees,
Half in shadow and half in sun,
As the drifting clouds moved overhead,
Lived with the daisies till day was done.
And they wakened thoughts that in liquid rhyme
Carried the soul of the summer time
To an exile lone in a dreary clime.
—Minnie Leona Upton in Good Housekeeping.

A SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lester had a flat on the North Side.

They were and are the kind of young married people calculated to restore a feeling of confidence as to matrimony.

Many a bachelor after spending an evening at the Lester flat and rioting in the simple delights of a "Dutch lunch" would remark to some other bachelor as they were walking homeward, "Say, if I knew where there was another Mrs. Bert Lester, I'd be a married man in less than six months."

The Lesters had a dozen or more men friends, mostly of the hotel kind, but Joe Barnet held the record for constant attendance. When there was any sort of social gathering at the Lester flat, Joe was neither absent nor tardy. He and Bert Lester had been good friends long before there was any Lester flat. Mrs. Lester believed that Joe was an "awfully nice fellow." She had laid certain plans for his future.

Louise Rhodes had been preached to Joe Barnet for a year.

Her picture was on the Lester mantel, and her name went back and forth between the Lesters.

"Oh, Joe, I must have Louise come up to visit me," Mrs. Lester would say when she had dragged Joe up to the photograph for the hundredth time. "You'll like her immensely. She's as clever as she can be, and pretty. Joe, her father has plenty of money too. Think of that."

"I don't see why that should interest me," Joe would reply with an indifference which was wholly assumed.

"Well, if I was a man there would not be many girls like Louise Rhodes running around single."

"You couldn't marry more than one of them."

"You're very bright tonight, aren't you? Wait till you see her. I know you will fall in love with her, and then it will serve you right if she refuses to look at you at all."

Mrs. Bert Lester and the much talked of Louise Rhodes had been classmates in a girls' seminary in Ohio. After graduating Kate Townsend returned to Chicago and promptly accepted Bert Lester. Louise resumed a country town existence at Flavius, Ind., where her father owned a grain elevator, a bank, a general store and a hub and spoke factory. His country possessions were marked by white farmhouses and huge red barns. Mrs. Lester once visited Louise at Flavius, and when she returned home she told fanciful stories of the Rhodes possessions.

Last spring, while Mrs. Lester was writing to Louise, coaxing her to come to Chicago on a visit, Joe Barnet did a very unusual thing. He wrote a letter to Miss Louise Rhodes of Flavius, Ind., a young woman whom he had never seen.

Mark the cunning of the scoundrel! This is the way the letter ran:

"Of course you dare not overlook my vast presumption in thus addressing you. One fact you must consider, however. I am with the Lesters so much of the time that I am, to all intents and purposes, a member of the household, and this may entitle me to the privilege of joining in the invitations. You may remember that May 8 will mark the third anniversary of their marriage. I am arranging to give a little dinner in their honor, but I want to make it a surprise to them. As you are Mrs. Lester's most intimate friend, it would be almost a calamity if you were not present at the dinner. You will understand, of course, that I could not have forwarded this information through the agency of Mrs. Lester. Don't tell her that I have written to you. I do not want her to learn of the dinner, and there are other reasons."

The letter closed with a final plea for pardon, and Joe mailed it, in the consciousness that he had done a very clever thing. He believed that any young woman, no matter how strict her seminary training had been, would have to answer that kind of letter. He was not mistaken. The reply came three days later, and it was in a bald and peaked handwriting, in which both ink and space were lavishly wasted. The letter called him "Mr. Barnet" and said among other things:

"Under these extraordinary circumstances I suppose I am justified in writing to you—a stranger. No, not a stranger, either, for I have heard so much about you (through Kate) that I suppose I can already claim a half way acquaintance. Alas, to say it! I cannot come to Chicago for your little dinner, which will doubtless be lovely. We are in the throes of preparation for a wedding here (my cousin), and until she is safely away on her wedding tour I shall be deliriously busy. It's too bad. Perhaps next month I shall be in Chicago, and you may be sure I will be prepared to feign proper surprise and embarrassment when Kate presents you. I would not for worlds let her know I had written this letter."

"Say, she's all right." This is what Joe Barnet told himself as he read her letter and grinned like a vealy boy over his first love note.

Joe studied the letter again and concluded that the young woman had not been seriously offended. So he wrote another letter, setting forth some of the June attractions in Chicago and hoping, rather more fervently than in the first letter, that she would accept the Lester invitation. He received an answer expressing regret that no absolute promise could be made and incidentally suggesting that the writer would be pleased to learn some of the particulars in regard to the little dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lester. Joe construed this as an open consent to keep up the correspondence, and in one short month thereafter his letters began, "My Dear Miss Rhodes," and she addressed him as "My Dear Mr. Barnet," this being the set and accepted form, although not commonly used between young people who have never met.

In the meantime Mrs. Lester continued to show the photograph to Joe and lecture on the superlative merits of her classmate. In her letters to Louise she eulogized Joe.

All this was preliminary to her subtle plans for a matchmaking.

In July the correspondence had become so cordial in its exchanges that Joe felt at perfect liberty to slip away to a night train and go to Flavius, Ind. He told the Lesters an elaborate lie about going to Indianapolis to settle a tax claim against some property left to him by his uncle. Miss Louise Rhodes, having been advised of his coming, told her parents an unblushing falsehood to the effect that she had become well acquainted with Mr. Barnet while she was attending the seminary in Ohio.

That day at Flavius settled it. They strolled under the maples and went driving along a winding creek road, an ardent Flavius couple in the front seat and the overhanging boughs sweeping the canopy top of the Rhodes family carriage.

They sat side by side in the big dining room while State Senator Rhodes, at the head of the table, ordered the timid hired girl to deliver immense portions of spring chicken to the young man from Chicago.

From that time on the developments came with the rush of closing chapters in a novel. Joe wrote almost daily, and after an interval of two weeks he was called to Indianapolis to settle another tax claim. On the occasion of his second visit to Flavius he proposed, but he was not definitely accepted, with the full consent of the state senate, until he had paid a third visit.

All this time he was pretending to be carelessly indifferent to the photograph in the Lester flat, and Louise Rhodes, in her letters to Mrs. Lester, sometimes mentioned that she would be glad to meet Mr. Barnet, having read so much about him.

Last week the Flavius girl came to Chicago for the long delayed visit.

Joe had been advised that the photograph girl was coming. He appeared at the flat promptly at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Lester, fluttering with importance, met him at the door.

Joe did not wait to be welcomed. He slammed his hat and coat on the rack, rushed into the parlor and then and there threw his arms around Louise Rhodes and kissed her.

Mrs. Lester shrieked and then tottered over against an armchair, actually faint with terror. She thought that Joe had gone stark, staring mad.

There had to be an immediate explanation, but it did not satisfy Mrs. Lester. She said the two of them were no better than the people who go to matrimonial agencies or put sloshy "personals" into obscure weekly papers. She was shocked beyond expression and did not fully forgive them until they had pleaded for at least five minutes.—Chicago Record.

William Morris as a Socialist.

Mr. Joseph Pennell, writing in the London Daily Chronicle, records the following incident: I remember seeing William Morris one Sunday afternoon walking up Parliament street. A meeting was being held in the square. I now forget entirely what it was about, but the people holding it had made up their minds to march to Westminster abbey, with a vague idea probably that when they got there they might do something. Suddenly an enormous crowd began to pour out of the square down Parliament street—a black, solid, muddy mass, for it was a wet, wintry day. On they came, with a sort of irresistible force, which really frightened one looking on as a spectator. And right in front—among the red flags, singing with all his might "The Marseillaise"—was William Morris. He had the face of a crusader, and he marched with that big stick of his as the crusaders must have marched.

One turned round and went with the crowd, which, when it got to the abbey, seemed half inclined to smash the windows, but those at the head of it were switched off and passed into Poets' corner, there to sit down and be preached to, while the others, who could not get in, were addressed by Canon Rawlinson outside. But what was so curious was to find this artist—like another Courbet—leading a crowd who really did not know what they wanted to do. However, had this crowd determined to destroy, to tear down even a stone of the abbey or to break a window, I think, instead of William Morris leading them a step farther, that they would only have taken that step over his body. I am not so sure what would have happened had the crowd marched against St. Paul's, for Morris hated the one sort of work as much as he loved the other. —St. James Gazette.

A Bit of Irish Wit.

Some time ago while I was trading in a village store one of the clerks came to the junior partner, who was waiting on me, and said:

"Please step to the desk. Pat Flynn wants to settle his account and wants a receipt."

The merchant was evidently annoyed.

"Why, what does he want of a receipt?" he said. "We never give one. Simply cross his account off the book. That is receipt enough."

"So I told him," answered the clerk, "but he is not satisfied. You had better see him."

So the proprietor stepped to the desk, and, after greeting Pat with a "Good morning," said:

"You want to settle your bill, do you?"

Pat replied in the affirmative.

"Well," said the merchant, "there is no need of my giving you a receipt. See, I will cross your account off the book," and, suiting the action to the word, he drew his pencil diagonally across the account. "That is a good receipt."

"And do you mane that that settles it?" exclaimed Pat.

"That settles it," said the merchant.

"And you're sure you'll never be askin me for it again?"

"We'll never ask you for it again," said the merchant decidedly.

"Faith, thin," said Pat, "I'll be after kapin me money in me pocket, for I haven't paid it."

"Oh, well, I can rub that out."

"Faith, now, and I thought the same," said Pat.

It is needless to add that Pat got his receipt.—Romance.

An Honest Judge.

"One of the most honest men who ever lived was Judge Arthur Shields," said C. R. Markham of Cheyenne. "He was on the bench in the early days of Kansas, and I was one of the lawyers who practiced in his court. Upon one occasion I was conducting a case in which I had perfect confidence when the trial began, but before it had progressed far the evidence against my client's side of the controversy was so strong and so unexpected that I saw the case was hopeless. I fully believed the witnesses lied, but could not shake them by cross examination, and it looked as though my client would lose his property. Judge Shields had decided every question with perfect fairness, and it could not be seen that he was in any way interested until suddenly he called to an attorney, 'Mr. Black, take the bench for the rest of this case;' then, turning to me, he said: 'Have me sworn as a witness. I will not see a man robbed in this court in matters of which I am personally cognizant.' He took the stand, and his testimony saved the case for me. The other side appealed, but the judge was sustained, the only case of the kind in the books."—Washington Star.

Cremations.

It is noteworthy that though in each of the American crematories more men than women have been cremated the movement abroad was practically begun by women, Lady Dilke of England and a German woman having been cremated at Dresden. When efforts were made in the years 1873-4 on the continent of Europe, in England and in the United States in favor of the cremation of the dead, Lady Rose Mary Crawshay was one of its prominent advocates. A number of well known women in this country have expressed themselves decidedly in favor of cremation. Among them are Olive Thorne Miller, Mrs. Lippincott, Mrs. J. C. Croly, Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mrs. Alice D. Le Plongeon, the late Kate Field, Rose Elizabeth Cleveland and Edith Thomas. At a public meeting Mrs. Ballington Booth referred to the time when her body should be carried to the crematory. The total number of cremations in the United States from 1876, when the first crematory was established, to the close of 1895, was reported to be 4,647. The number of men cremated in New York is more than double the number of women.—New York Tribune.

"I Love You!"

"I love you!"

Oh, what music there was in those words as they flowed mellifluously—which means something about honey—from her parted lips. Her lips were parted in the middle.

"I love you!"

The songs of the birds in the trees overhead seemed jangling and out of tune in comparison with these words of her.

"I love you!"

Aye, for such a one as she kings, and even actors, would have given up their all and fallen captive at her feet.

"I love you!"

And he? Did his heart leap within him? Did his panting breath denote the ardor of his longing to clasp her in his arms? Did he fall on bended knee and cry:

"And I love thee!"

No. He gave a blithe bark and wagged his tail, for he knew he was her favorite poodle.—New York Journal.

When You See It In Print.

A sensitive man is never so humiliated as when he is obliged to read his own proofs. Type mocks the writer. The sentence that in manuscript moved with the stride of an armed man or danced as a swooning strain of Strauss is now limp and lame. The phrase that glowed with color is now pallid. Sparkling wit is flat. Sage reflection is jejune. The thought, "Shall I ever get the money for this?" is jostled by, "Who would be fool enough to pay for it?"—Boston Journal.

The Good and Beautiful.

To see the good and the beautiful and to have no strength to live it is only to be Moses on the mountain of Nebo, with the land at your feet and no power to enter. It would be better not to see it.—Olive Schreiner.

A SONOMA ENTERPRISE.

JOHN BATTO & SON'S fruit dryer at Vineyard Station has closed down for the season after a successful run of six months. Five hundred and fifty tons of green fruit have been handled during that period, all of which was raised in this valley. Five thousand dollars was expended for fruit and labor, all of which money was put into circulation in our midst. It is such enterprises as the above that should be fostered and encouraged in this valley. There has been too much energy wasted and money expended in Sonoma the past ten years in the profitless task of entertaining Mexican War Veterans, teachers, Bear Flag Survivors and the like. Let us now endeavor to make times better in this valley in a more practical way. We can't live off of praise and climate. Manufacturing establishments, fruit dryers and canneries are the things that talk.

COUNTY GLEANINGS.

A Santa Rosa singer went to Healdsburg Wednesday night and his lungs were so affected by the cold there the Healdsburgers thought his pants were worn out.—Democrat.

The Sonoma County Horticulture Society held an important meeting at Santa Rosa Saturday afternoon. One of the principal objects of the meeting was to consider the proposition to have Sonoma county represented by an exhibit of products at the Hamburg exposition next year. All the fruit growers favored the plan, and a committee was appointed to take hold of the matter. The Supervisors will be asked to make an appropriation to help defray expenses.

A fatal accident occurred on the Fiege place near the Piner school house on Friday afternoon of last week. Johnnie Fowler, the seven-year-old son of J. D. Fowler, was almost instantly killed by the discharge of a gun in the hands of his companion, Ralph Fiege. Mrs. Fowler and her boy were visiting at the Fiege residence, and the Fiege lad got his new gun to show his little friend. In some accidental manner the weapon was discharged, the ball entering the lower part of the Fowler boy's face and ranging upward into the brain. The unfortunate boy expired a few moments after the terrible accident, dying in his horrified mother's arms.—S. R. Press.

Miss Mabel McDonald was thrown from her horse Saturday evening. It is not known exactly how the accident happened, as her mind is not very clear yet, but from what she remembers it seems that the horse took fright at something opposite the Fourth-street school house, and galloped up Fourth street and then turned into McDonald avenue. Miss McDonald remembers holding to the reins with both hands near the bit, and that something gave way. This was the stirrup, which was afterwards found on the avenue. Where she fell she cannot remember, but in some way she got into the house and called to her mother. Her brother, knowing that Mrs. McDonald was in the city, went down and found her staggering in a dazed condition. Miss McDonald is probably not seriously hurt, but is badly stunned.—S. R. Republican.

A serious stabbing affray occurred at Cotati, five miles from Santa Rosa, Tuesday afternoon, as a result of which Frederick Donahue, at one time foreman of the El Rancho Cotati, is likely to die. The circumstances attending the stabbing are as follows: About two months ago Donahue loaned $7 to a fellow workman named Frank Wood, who wanted the money at that time to send to his folks at Oakland. It seems that Wood quit work Monday night and was paid off. Tuesday Donahue asked Wood to return the $7 he had borrowed. This Wood declined to do, saying he had never borrowed any money. Donahue grew angry at this attempt on the part of Wood to repudiate the debt, and seizing a club he struck Wood. Wood warded off the blow with one of his hands, and with the other stabbed Donahue in the left shoulder blade. The knife penetrated the left lung, and Donahue fell bleeding to the ground. The wounded fellow's injuries are very serious, and it is not yet known whether he will recover. After the stabbing Wood walked off, and when last heard of was in Petaluma. It is not known if a warrant will be issued for him, as it is claimed Donahue was the aggressor.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Woman's Work

Is never done, and it is especially wearing and wearisome to those whose blood is impure and unfit properly to tone, sustain, and renew the wasting of nerve, muscle and tissue. It is more because of this condition of the blood that women are run down,

Tired, Weak, Nervous,

Than because of the work itself. Every physician says so, and that the only remedy is in building up by taking a good nerve tonic, blood purifier and vitalizer like Hood's Sarsaparilla. For the troubles Peculiar to Women at change of season, climate or life, or resulting from hard work, nervousness, and impure blood, thousands have found relief and cure in

Hood's Sarsaparilla

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, DECEMBER 5, 1896.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

City Trustees.

A regular meeting of the City Trustees was held last Wednesday evening. All the members were present, except Trustee Bulotti.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

J. E. Robin, salary for one month	$15.00
Fidele Galanti, labor	2.00
John Stademan, labor	1.00
John Revie, hauling lumber	6.50
Total	$24.50

The bill of L. Breitenbach, for building the Germany-street bridge, assigned to L. H. Green, in the sum of $232.00, on motion of Trustee Hartin, which received a second from Trustee Poppe, was ordered paid.

Clerk Robert Poppe was instructed to prepare a claim against Sonoma county for $116 for one-half the cost of the Germany-street bridge and present the same to the Board of Supervisors at its next regular meeting.

City Recorder Cheney presented a report of the proceedings in his court up to December 1st. The report, on motion of Trustee Hartin, which received a second from Trustee Poppe, was received and ordered filed.

The sum of $200 was appropriated for graveling the streets. The motion was put by Trustee Hartin and seconded by Trustee Poppe.

The motion was put and carried to exempt the members of the Sonoma Fire Company in good standing the State poll taxes.

City Marshal Robin was instructed to dispose of at public auction all the old lumber and sheet iron belonging to the city.

The Board then adjourned.

Row Among Neighbors.

Evidently the Griffith and Fields families, residing on their respective ranches near Vineyard Station, have not a Damon and Pythias affection for each other, if we should judge by the racket they got into the other day, and which will be ventilated in Judge Cheney's court this afternoon. The rumpus, which led up to the arrest of T. W. Fields and his mother, Mary A. Fields, on the one side, and Al Griffith on the other, was all caused over a trespassing cow. The Fields came to town Wednesday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Griffith, charging him with battery. Griffith then retaliated and caused the arrest of Mrs. Fields and her son. He claims the mother slapped his face while the son struck him with his fist. At latest accounts the cow, which was the cause of all the trouble, was the only one mixed up in the fracas that had not been arrested.

An Important Sale.

A. Bulotti, assignee of Pietro Cheda, the well-known dairyman, who recently went into insolvency, will sell at public auction on the Cheda ranch, on Saturday, December 26th, at 11 o'clock, all the real and personal property of the insolvent. Among other things to be disposed of will be 105 milch cows, eight horses, nineteen yearling calves, one hundred tons of hay and harnesses. The sale, which is a forced one, will enable our people to secure any of the above property at a great bargain.

A Mighty Close Call.

John Querilo, an aged Italian residing in this place, had a narrow escape from being run over and killed by a Southern Pacific train at El Verano last Sunday morning. In attempting to board the train while it was in motion his foot slipped and he was hurled violently to the ground, the car wheels just missing the prostrate man. Aside from being badly frightened Querilo, after being assisted to his feet, was none the worse off on account of his hair-breadth escape.

Big Wine Sale.

Chas. Bondschu of Rhinefarm, and a member of the firm of Gundlach & Co., on Monday last purchased nearly 300,000 gallons of wine from the estate of the late I. DeTurk. The price paid was twenty cents per gallon, or nearly $60,000, and at that price the sale was confirmed by Judge Crawford.

S. T. Ashley, a brakeman on the S. F. & N. P. railroad had several fingers badly smashed while coupling a train at Ukiah Tuesday.

THE WATER QUESTION.

Special Committee of the City Trustees to make a Report Next Month.

The special water committee of the Board of City Trustees, composed of Messrs. Hartin, Bulotti and Seipp, have been hard at work ever since their appointment several months ago to get the water question in shape so as to present to the voters of Sonoma the proposition whether or not the city is to own and control its own water system. Options have been secured on the Lawrence, Schocken, Weyl and other artesian wells in the town and the delay in arriving at something definite in the matter has been occasioned by not being able to come to an understanding with the owners of the Vallejo system, which is at present supplying the town with water.

The Board, while realizing that the present system is inadequate for fire and domestic purposes, have no desire to take advantage of the owners of the Vallejo Water Works, nor anybody else, but are endeavoring to do their level best to solve the problem of securing to the people of this town, without fear or favor, a supply of water adequate to its needs with as little cost as possible.

WATMAUGH SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises—The Programme.

The Watmaugh School, Miss Sanderson, teacher, closed for the winter vacation on Friday, November 20th.

Isadore Leveruni; vacation song, school.

Closing Exercises of the Summit Joint School.

The Summit Joint School, Miss Emily C. Kurtz, teacher, closed for the winter vacation on Friday of last week. The programme, consisting of recitations and musical selections, was well carried out by the scholars. After the literary exercises old Santa Claus, personated by Jacob Frideger, Jr., made his appearance, much to the surprise and delight of all the scholars, and made each a present. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frideger Sr., Jacob Frideger Jr., Misses Lizzie, Helen, May and Maggie Frideger, Miss Webb, Miss Emma Hurd—who personated Mrs. Santa Claus—Charley Hurd and brother, Albert Groskopf and family, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Wright, Isaac Wright, T. Julian, Master Harry Julian, T. S. McCulloch, Mrs. Dalton, Master George Dalton and little Mary Dalton, Miss E. C. Kurtz, who is to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment given at the close of the thirteenth term she has taught in the district.

Chimney Blaze.

The alarm of fire on Monday morning last between 7 and 8 o'clock was rung in for a chimney blaze in the Ticino Hotel. A large number of firemen and citizens responded to the call but it was not found necessary to take the apparatus out of the engine house. No damage.

Beautiful Eden Dale, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Howe, located about two miles south of Sonoma, was the scene last Thursday evening of a pleasant gathering of neighbors and friends who called to tender their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Gearheart (nee Mary Howe,) who were recently married in San Francisco. By eight o'clock the spacious parlors were well filled by a jovial gathering of friends, who devoted themselves to playing games, merry conversation and dancing. The guests were also entertained by vocal and instrumental music, after which all marched to the large dining room, where choice refreshments were served. The tables were prettily decorated with smilax and choice cut flowers, and at each plate was laid a bouquet of violets, which the guests preserved as a souvenier of the pleasant occasion. It was nearly midnight when all took their departure, but not before wishing the newly wedded couple many happy and prosperous years of married life. The following were those present: Mr. and Mrs. M. Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, Miss Mattie Goodman, Mrs. Cassabohm, Mr. and Mrs. Ohm, Miss Margaret Burke, Mr. and Mrs. J. McMullen, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Gearhart, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, DEC. 5, 1896.

Two Friends.

The late Mr. H. C. Bunner, the editor of Puck, and Lawrence Hutton were the closest of friends. They began, says Mr. Hutton, in his sad reminiscence of his dead friend, published in The Bookman, in that often desirable fashion, "with a little aversion." Each avoided even an introduction to the other until fate actually threw them together, not to be parted more. Their mutual "good times" were dear at the moment and "pleasant, too, to think on." There was much "excellent fooling" there, and when Hutton was married it but added a third desirable member to the company. The marriage itself shows on what terms of happy nonsense they lived. Mr. Hutton says:

He and Mr. Telford and I spent together at the Westmoreland and in Bunner's rooms the last evening of my single life. He had heard that luck would be insured if the groom, on the occasion of his marriage, would wear "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue." He urged, therefore, my appearance next day in a pair of socks procured especially by him for me. One was absolutely unworn, the other had seen service and was darned, but they were both blue. And I must borrow them.

Mr. Telford, I remember, lent me a necktie for the same purpose, and both of those dear boys were married, when their time came, in something blue that was borrowed from me.

When Bunner was married, we sent his wife a traveling clock as a wedding gift, to which I attached a card bearing these lines:

For old time's sake
Will you and H. C. B.
At this time take
The time from mine and me?

Time is, time was.
Let time be old or new,
The times for us
Are high old times with you.

To this the lady responded:

I lack the time, in spite of time from you,
To write the heartfelt thanks I feel are due.
But every passing hour while time endures
Shall speak to me and mine of you and yours.

One of the Rarest Books.

Among the books of a comparatively recent date, if the seventeenth century can be described as such, is, as the Elzevir collector well knows, the famous "Patissier Francois," a small duodecimo printed by Louys and Daniel Elzevir at Amsterdam in 1655. A faulty and poor reimpression of a work of little value issued in Paris two years previously, this book has become the most sought after of all he Elzevir works, just because it is wrongly thought to be the scarcest. It has fetched prices reaching in France as high as 4,600 francs. The reason for the supposed rarity is of course that, instead of being placed on its first appearance on the shelves of the curious or the studious, the little volume was thumbed to pieces by the greasy hands of cooks and kitchen maids. Genuine enthusiasts in the printer's art have hoped to see the price diminished in presence of the revelations lately furnished concerning it. Its market value, however, shows no signs of diminution, and that one copy, sold in England during the last seven or eight years, fetched at Sotheby's on June 10, 1895, the sale being that of the Earl of Orford, the preposterous price of £100. —Gentleman's Magazine.

Must Conquer if They Want Shelter.

The German soldier, says the London News, carries his own house on his back —that is to say, his share of a shelter tent. The stout pieces of waterproof sheeting are joined together so as to form three sides of a square, and the men are saved from the worst in wind and rain. The idea of the shelter tent in sections is no new one. The French had it many years ago in their tente d'abri. It has many advantages. It reduces the baggage of the army, and it enables the soldier to go into lodgings at once on reaching the scene of the bivouac.

Troops often suffer miserable discomfort in waiting for hours for their heavy tents. The Germans have no faith in these cumbrous contrivances. They have often sent whole armies into the field without any sort of shelter. Their theory is that if the men win a battle they will find all they want in the towns and villages, and that if they lose it they will have no time to pitch tents. The shelter tent seems a compromise between these views.

Man's Bitterest Enemy.

"Sin is always man's bitterest enemy," writes Dwight L. Moody in "Mr. Moody's Bible Class" in the Ladies' Home Journal. "It separates him from his Maker. It separates him from his fellow beings. No position is too high for sin to debase; no place so hallowed but it seeks to corrupt; no home so sacred but it seeks to destroy. 'Sin, like holiness, is a mighty leveler,' says a distinguished divine. And what may be the cause of the thousands of suicides which have occurred during the past year if it is not a loathing of self? It is sin, then, which makes a man loathe himself. It is sin which makes man's life become a burden from which he so often seeks to free himself by his own hand."

Origin of the Sidesaddle.

The use of the side saddle for women riders is traced to the time of Anne of Bohemia, eldest daughter of the emperor of Germany, who married Richard II of England. Previous to this date all English women bestrode their horses in manly fashion, but on account of a deformity this German bride was forced to use a side saddle, and the custom became general.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Asked For.

A tramp tumbled out of a store, stood on his ear a moment and then collapsed in a heap.

"Hello!" cried a bystander. "What's the matter?"

"Excuse me, pard," said the vagrant. "I just went in there and asked that feller to help me out."—Philadelphia Record.

Kept His Head.

It is not safe to joke among an oriental people unless you understand their manners and customs. Lord Charles Beresford, who accompanied the Prince of Wales in India, relates a funny incident of the journey, which just escaped being a tragic one.

"We were elephant shooting in Geylon," he says, "and were driving back to Colombo, when the horses in the wagonette showed signs of fatigue. Lord Aylesbury, who was on the box, took the reins from our Tamil coachman, whereupon the animals swerved just as we were crossing a rude bridge, and the whole equipage, passengers and all, were precipitated into the nullah below.

"No one was hurt. I playfully belabored the coachman with a bundle of elephants' tails and then told him to mount the box. At the same time I turned to the Malay sergeant and said in solemn tones:

"'Cut that man's head off.'

"He, thinking it an awful crime to upset the prince, instantly drew his saber and rushed at the coachman.

"Fortunately the coachman understood English and scrambled on to a ledge of rock out of reach. Seeing that my joke had nearly caused a catastrophe, I called out to the sergeant:

"'The prince has graciously pardoned him. Let him come down.'"

So the coachman kept his head on his shoulders, and there was no harm done, but if he had not understood English and had not got out of the way! As our English friends themselves are wont to remark, "Only fawncy!"

Half Kaffir, Half Englishman.

If, as is sometimes held, though we ourselves are very strongly of the opposite opinion, the Hottentots and Bushmen of South Africa are not human creatures caught in the very act of developing from lower forms, but are the result of degeneration from some higher type, then the creature resulting from a cross between the two might revert to the higher type and be of higher social feeling and intellectual power than either. We have ourselves in only one instance met an individual who was a cross between the English and Kaffir races, though we know that several such exist in South Africa. This man was certainly merely a composite of the two races, without any tendency to reversion. He was the son of an English gentleman; his mother was a Kaffir woman who had not been draggled under the feet of civilization.

The man was proud, determined, resolute. Self educated, he raised himself to a post of high trust under the English government. He combined the dash and courage of the Kaffir with the pride and intelligence of the Englishman. He had the fault, which is common to both his parent races, of being cruel and indomitable when opposed, but of the vices supposed to be inseparable from half castism—servility and insincerity—he had not a trace. He was a man and a gentleman. But whether if such crosses were common such men would often arise is quite another question.—Fortnightly Review.

Patsy Took It Bilin.

Patsy had been in the country only a few days and had not recovered from the effects of his ocean voyage. He complained of a headache, and his sympathetic aunt finally decided to give him a Seidlitz powder. She got two glasses and put the contents of the blue package into one and emptied the white package into the other.

"Now, you hold your mouth open," said his aunt, holding the glasses, one in each hand.

Young Patsy opened a spacious cavern, displaying two fine rows of molars, and, with a dexterous motion, his aunt mixed the contents of both glasses and poured the Seidlitz powder into his face. He spluttered and coughed and ran about the room.

"Well, how did you like it?" asked his aunt smilingly when he had recovered somewhat.

"I wudn't ha' minded it so much if ye hadn't give it ter me whin it wuz bilin!" he gasped between chokes.

It cured Patsy's headache, however.—New York Sun.

A Valuable Rhyme.

James Smith, one of the authors of the celebrated "Rejected Addresses," was better paid for a trifling exertion of his versatile muse than any poet since the world began. One day he met the late Mr. Strachan, the king's printer, at a dinner party and found him suffering from gout and old age, though his intellectual faculties remained unimpaired. The next morning he transmitted to him the following jeu d'esprit:

Your lower limbs seemed far from stout
When last I saw you walk.
The cause I presently found out
When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's length,
In due proportion spread,
In you mounts upward, and the strength
All settles in the head.

This compliment proved so highly acceptable to the old gentleman that he made an immediate codicil to his will, by which he bequeathed to the writer the sum of $3,000, being at the rate of $375 for each line.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Lunatic's Comment.

Mr. Robert Ganthony, the English entertainer, once gave a performance at the Prestwich Lunatic asylum. The inmates took his diverting monologue very well at first, but when he came to the portion of the performance in which he impersonates a testy old magistrate of 90 summers a woman rose with vehemence and shouted, "Fancy me being kept here while that man is left to run loose."

In 1828 a brass troy pound, procured by the American minister in London in the previous year, was declared to be the standard in the United States for that measure.

THE TRUCKMANS' FAVORITE

POLLOCK,

THIS CELEBRATED CLYDESDALE Stallion will stand for the season of 1896 at General Vallejo's stables, Sonoma, on FRIDAYS, SATURDAYS and SUNDAYS of each week. Balance of time will be made known later.

POLLOCK is known as a grand-bred horse from both Sire and Dam. He also has a fine form and is a beautiful dapple brown in color, black legs and fine mane and tail. For disposition he cannot be beat. He is also very stylish and a grand mover, which was proven at the State Fair last year when he won the stallion walking match, beating the best record. He is also winner of Four Prizes at the State Fair, and is the sire of entire colt that won First Prize at that Fair in 1895.

POLLOCK is now in his best age, and surely ought to be a good horse to breed from.

TERMS—Fifteen Dollars for the season with return privilege. Strictly one price. Service fees must be paid by July 1st.

The Young Hambletonian Trotting-Bred Stallion

SONOMA BOY,

Will stand this season for ten fine mares only at the low service fee of $35, with a return privilege. Season will close July 1st.

SONOMA BOY is a beautiful golden bay, will be four years old next July and will weigh 1,100 pounds when matured. He is a smooth-made, evenly-proportioned horse with wonderful trotting action. He will speak for himself when his record is made. He is level-headed and intelligent, and comes from blood lines that are noted for speed and gameness.

SONOMA BOY was sired by Romeo, three-year-old record, 2:30; trial, 2:22 with only a few weeks training. He by Ulster Chief, half-brother to Electioneer.

SONOMA BOY'S first dam by Old Washington, record 2:19½; second dam by Williams' Belmont, a great breed of horses noted for speed and gameness.

I can also furnish the best of pasture for mares bred to the above horses—a level field with shade trees, pure living water, good fence (no wire), at the Carriger ranch near El Verano, where the mares will be attended to at the low rate of $1.50 per month.
